About Luis:

I am an alumnus of UCSC and a native of Los Angeles, CA. I personally enjoy working with students and families to assist them in learning about the various options to finance their education. I strongly believe that each student should have a mentor, peer or professional, who can assist them in making the transition to college a less daunting one. I strive to be a mentor to each student I interact with and offer advice about the different pathways that are available to them and encourage students to take advantage of the many great resources available to them at UCSC.

Personally, I aspire to continue my work in higher education, and continue to research the positive impacts of mentoring in the classroom environment as a secondary resource for teachers and professors, with the ultimate goal of incorporating elements of mentorship into the classroom curriculum.

Aside from academia, I am a passionate car enthusiast, technology aficionado, photography hobbyist, and I enjoy watching and playing the game of soccer.
